"THE MONSOON BLUES", is a new album of songs and poems that I wrote, composed and produced, all inspired by stories and realities that I have experienced between various continents in the world.

These nine songs merged as a contrasted kaleidoscope or kaleidoscore over a short period of time, between 2018 and 2019, while my leitmotif remained the same since the very beginning... We shouldn't forget from where we all come from. Like tiny seeds planted in Mother Earth, like small, yet precious drops merging into the endless Ocean of Life, we are part of the same family.

I crossed many places where I witnessed great beauty and also disorder.

On a personal note, my ancestors traveled on various oceans, being highly respected navigators, both men and women, who forged themselves, a destiny through tempests and conquests. We are nothing in front of natural elements and the various flows of the Monsoon, happening everywhere today, remind us of the unpredictable flows of life. Are we listening? Are we caring? Are we rightfully interconnected to reinforce balance in our world?

These songs are there to remind us to be thankful and respectful to each other and our Nature. It's also an act of dancing together, wherever, whenever as there is Hope! I hope you'll enjoy them and share them among all yours,
